Jetstyle 2000 The new cutting edge of information technology

by Lola Aroun

I'M sure that you have heard the saying before 'Sisters are doing it for themselves' but the brothers are also doing it for themselves and living proof is Errol Neufville the Director of Jetstyle 2000

AS a private limited company Errol states that 'it is absolutely crucial that the older generation understand the impact of technology on their lives today, the younger ones are being taught every day with Dreamcast, Play Stations etc., these are all computer based toys and that is why we offer custom built training packages to suit the individual. We also specialise in web page design, domain registration, web casting, e-mail and other internet services'.

Having been in the computer industry since he started working in 1972 Errol was a computer operator with British Gas operating ICL and IBM Mainframe Computers until he switched to computer programming in 1978. With a wealth of experience behind him he eventually decided to start his own business to create more challenges and to retain ownership of his own creative ideas and program products.

The category and type of projects that Errol has worked on in the past includes systems for stockbrokers. Garment manufacturers, gold/jewellery manufacturers, insurance companies and night clubs but the most satisfying for Jetstyle 2000 to date is web casting which was recently undertaken at Christopher Gordon's restaurant in London's Fleet Street.

'This project was handled by myself and it was the first time I had which although is only two years old it is already fast becoming the cutting edge and one of the leading competitors when it comes to services based around the Internet.

merged my computer skills with music on a professional basis. It involved filming, broadcasting via the Internet a complete reggae and soul concert' stated Errol. 'The most enjoyable aspect of working for yourself is scheduling your own time, I find the most daunting paying income tax and VAT'. On the Y2K saga Errol says 'It was a problem solved before anything happened and the Government worked well to effect the necessary action in the industry'.

On a definite mission to reach his full potential Errol's day is extremely busy especially with his other commitments which include the co-management of Jacques Marketing Agency and he also manages a performing group. On top of this, he also manages a group.

When asked what he does when he does find the time, Errol states that he dances, walks and reads books, mainly books which are technical based, biographies or spiritual books. Born in Portland, Happy Grove, Jamaica, Errol plans to settle down eventually and still waits to be asked. Ladies! What are you waiting for?
